About Gangotri Temple

Located at an altitude of 3,100mts, Gangotri Temple, the highest temple dedicated to Goddess

Ganga, is one of the four Chota Char Dham Yatra pilgrimage sites in Uttarakhand. Goddess Ganga is the personification of the revered Ganga River. The peaceful white temple is surrounded by Deodar and pines and the Greater Himalayan Range. The holy river Bhagirathi, which is one of the two head-streams of Ganga, flows alongside Gangotri Temple.

Kedarnath Temple History

The holy Kedarnath temple is said to have been built in the 8th century AD by Hindu guru Adi Sankaracharya. Sankaracharya rebuilt the place where the Pandavas of the Mahabharat fame are believed to constructed a shiv temple.

According to mythology, Pandavas built the Kedarnath temple after Mahabharata. It is said that Pandavas wanted to go to Lord Shiva for forgiveness after killing their Kaurav brothers to atone for their sins. But Lord Shiva did not want to meet them. That's why Lord Shiva hid in Guptkashi.

Pandavas and Draupadi spotted a bull that was very unique from the other bulls In Gupt Kashi. Pandav's brother Bheem identified that the bull is none other than Lord Shiva himself. Lord Shiva who was hiding from them was in the form of Nandi, the bull. Bheem tried to catch the bull but couldn't succeed, he only caught the tail of the bull.

Panch Kedar History

Lord Shiva, who disappeared from Guptkashi reappeared in five different forms in five different places.

These are hump at Kedarnath,
face at Rudranath,
arms at Tungnath, navel, and stomach at Madhyamaheshwar and the Hair locks (Jata) at Kalpeshwar.

And that's how Panch Kedar came into existence.
